Dear Ms. Scott,

I had looked at being a travel nurse in my future a couple of times. For several years I have focused my academic pursuits on learning and developing those all-important skills necessary to be great in the medical field . I strive to become the best nurse I can be for my patients.

I believe to be successful in the field you need to be genuine, nurturing, professional and driven. I possess skills like Compassion, a good work ethic and always working to help people around me. Additionally, my abilities extend to customer service, teamwork, and patients well working with kids has helped me straighten my qualities. My goal is to work with diverse groups of patients and with different needs.

For further details of my qualifications, background, and contributions, please take a moment to review my enclosed resume.

Sincerely,

Jennaveve Albert
